Sasfin and sme.africa released a second survey during August 2020 to collect more information about the impact that COVID-19 has had on SMEs in South Africa.

The distribution of business owners across the various provinces and sectors remained comparable between those who participated in the first and second survey.
Almost half of the SME respondents were distressed i.e. severely impacted by COVID-19, a further 41% were coping i.e. had limited impact, and 10% were thriving.

SME respondents in all impact categories faced substantial challenges in revenue, cash flow and morale.

Managing cash flow was the most serious challenge observed for SMEs in all the impact categories.

The annual turnover of just over half the SME respondents was less than R1m, with a further 26% between R1m and R5m.

- 54% R0 - R1m
- 26% R1m - R5m
- 8% R5m - R10m
- 6% R10m - R30m
- 6% R30m+
Compared to respondents with thriving SMEs, distressed respondents tended to rely slightly less on E-commerce and slightly more on messaging, telephonic and in-person channels.
Respondents' confidence in both their businesses and business sector/industry was correlated with the performance of their businesses since the lockdown. Their business confidence was mainly greater than their confidence in their sector/industry.

Confidence in the global economy was lower for respondents in all SME impact categories, with 38%-43% of respondents confident, and even lower for South Africa as a whole (20%-22%).

The people-oriented sectors, building and leisure, were relatively over-represented in severely impacted SMEs. By contrast, the finance/professional services sector was relatively over-represented in both coping and thriving SMEs.
